

Other Projects in the Pile (.....Oh Yeah, There's More!)

Kansas Trouble (no not the fabric line)

This one has been around a long time. All hand pieced. I've taken little bags of "trouble" with me for years it seems. I have the center finished but now I'm working on the next border which is similar blocks only in a different position. This is one of those that you shake your head and say ""What was I thinking!"

Floating Stars

This is basically 2 1/2" squares. I just finished piecing the top and now I need to figure out the borders. I love the way this came out. My grandson looked at it and said, "Grandma, I see the stars!" But he saw different stars than I did. He saw the wonky stars. What do you see? Stars? Wonky Stars? Stripes? Interesting!

Scrappy Hearts for Samantha

I made this several years ago and it still needs to be quilted. Someday I hope to give it to my granddaughter. I saw the pattern hanging in a quilt shop and came home and drew up the block. It's all made with 2" squares

Whirl-A-Jig

I love this pattern. It makes me happy to look at all the bright colors. Yes, it's still in the pile. It needs a border and then to be quilted.

Pinwheels with Scrappy Sashing

This was a fun thing to do. It looks so busy but after it is quilted I'm thinking those pinwheels will just pop!

Nine Patch Baskets

My guild had a nine patch exchange. Many could not think of what to do with them so I made up this top to show that even the ugliest nine patches can look great. This is on the quilting pile. Will make someone a nice snuggle-y/lap quilt.

Strippy Strings

What to do with all those strips of strings! Cut them up into blocks and sew them together! Still needs to be quilted tho.

Ohio Star Trails

Needs borders and quilting.
